

FREYA SETS THE TONE

Broadstairs schoolgirl Freya Rhodes will entertain high-profile guests when Tracey Emin comes to Margate on Friday to launch her neon artwork.

She has been chosen by Turner Contemporary bosses to play piano, flute and harp and sing at a fund-raising reception

The 11-year-old will perform at the Walpole Bay Hotel in Cliftonville during the £50-a-head party.

Money raised will go towards the regeneration of Margate's Old Town through the Margate Town Partnership.

Organisers have invited Freya to perform as a solo artist at the event and it is expected that guests will include Sir Peter Maxwell Davies, Master of the Queen's Music, Turner Centre Committee members and other luminaries.

Find out more about the award-winning musician by visiting her website www.freyalovesmusic.com.

